

Economics & Criminal Justice

Economics - Debate - History - Law

Baton Rouge Economic Thinking Workshop

September 22, 9:30 am - 5pm, Greenwell Springs Road Library
11300 Greenwell Springs Rd., Baton Rouge, LA 70814

Cost: $30/student, $15/siblings (parents no charge).

To Register: E-mail Julie Sumrall <sumjulie@bellsouth.net>

Join us for this interdisciplinary workshop for students and parents, covering the intersection of economics, public policy, history, and the criminal justice system.

Homeschool debaters interested in the NCFCA debate topics will learn the economics, history, and jurisprudence of criminal justice in the status quo, and in various reform proposals. Economic principles and lessons from history help students better understand today's law and justice issues, and the role of private sector security, courts, and prisons.

The revised LD topic will also be discussed: Resolved: In the pursuit of justice, due process ought to be valued above the discovery of fact. Presentations on the economics and history of the federal criminal justice system, and problems since New Deal legislation expanded federal powers across the U.S. economy. Ever more aspects of everyday life are touched by vague and complex federal legislation carrying criminal penalties arbitrarily enforced.

- Gregory Rehmke directs Economic Thinking, consults for the the Institute for Economic Studies-Europe, and directs seminars for Independent Institute. He is coauthor of The Complete Idiot's Guide to Global Economics.

Over the last ten years more than 5,000 homeschool students and parents have attended Economic Thinking (and Foundation for Economic Education) workshops on the economics of national homeschool debate topics.
